HOW CAN I ALLOW THE Light
THAT DWELLS WITHIN ME
TO BRING ABOUT Unity?

#CONNECTINGPOINT

MUSINGS + MESSAGES

👤 Msgr. John Kasza, Moderator ✉ frjohn@stol.church

Today's first reading echoes that reading from Isaiah which we heard on Christmas, although they are two different passages. The theme is that of light. When we are walking in darkness or gloom, we need light to see; otherwise, we will trip and fall. As Christians however, the danger is not from physical tripping; rather, we are continually in danger of falling spiritually.

The light in today's scripture passages reminds us that Christ is our true light. We need to see the world through the eyes of faith. Christ illumines our hearts and minds so that we can more clearly see what God has in store for us.

Yet, even though we have been enlightened by Christ, we sometimes allow the world to cloud our perception of reality. We become enamored with things of the world or with personalities which lead us away from our faith. We may get

Connecting Point

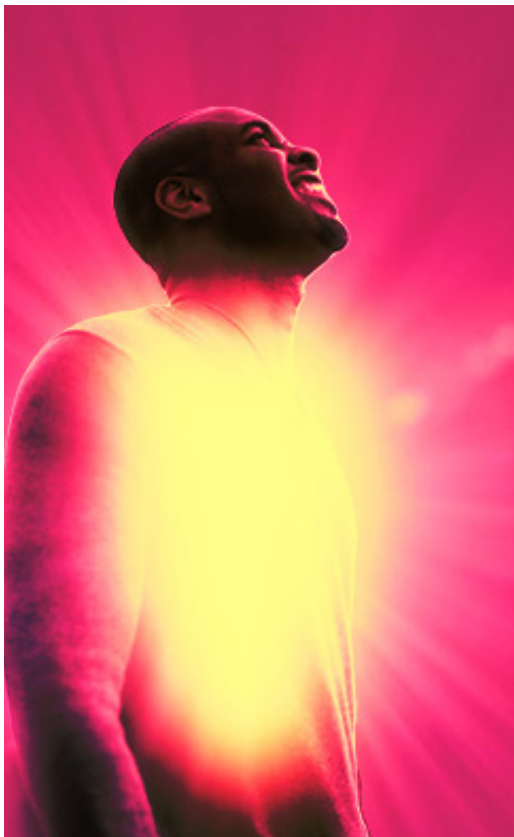

How can I allow the light that dwells within me to bring about unity?

 Amy Righi, Music & Liturgy Director - St. Isidore amy@stisidore.church

The opposite of unity is tragically far more pervasive than the alternative in this current day and age of sensationalism, false news, and anyone spewing just about anything they care to say anytime and anywhere. Relational chaos ensues when issues become more important than people.

When it comes to our personal relationships with family and friends (including social media contacts), we do have control in how we react to anything that makes us feel disunited with them.

Jesus was all about relationships. He focused less on conflict and past sins than he did on support and encouragement of those he met, including tax collectors, criminals and the woman at the well. He was more about growing in relationship and moving ahead into unity rather than dwelling on the past. Jesus certainly didn't hold a grudge... even against those who nailed him to a cross.

Pray for wisdom and patience.

When we are faced with an opportunity to bring about unity from relational chaos or disunity, we can pray for the strength, wisdom, and patience of the Holy Spirit to guide us to a peaceful place from where we can begin to communicate.

Professional mediators use many tools that we can employ in our response to bring about unity.

Listening attentively - Good communication involves less talking and more listening (and certainly no screaming).

Respond clearly - Avoiding defensiveness by restating what the other person said so they know you have heard and understand them.

Ask the right questions in respectful kindness to appreciate their whole story.

Show Empathy. Affirm common/shared feelings, even anger or frustration.

Affirming one another's feelings is a big step in reaching true understanding and unity.

Mediation requires much patience (and many deep breaths) in direct relation to how heated the particular issue is for you. This is why prayer must come first. We are much better at finding unity when we first invite God to be in on the conversation. May prayer, patience and perseverance bring peace and understanding.

His light dwells within each of us.

► The Search begins...

The world is changing, but the essential human questions remain the same.

Who am I? What do I want? Is there a point to my life?

More than likely, you have a nagging feeling – a yearning – to understand your place in the cosmos. You wonder. You question. You explore. Welcome to the human story.

Welcome to The Search.

The Search is an innovative video series that tackles the key questions of every human heart. In seven beautifully filmed episodes hosted by our own Chris Stefanick and featuring other experts from multiple fields of science, medicine, psychology, art, and religion... they examine our place in the larger story of existence.

Whether you're a practiced inquirer or a jaded skeptic, The Search will speak to you. You may be reassured by some parts and challenged by others. Either way, you'll find a lot here to think about. And when all is said and done, life's questions demand to be answered.

Are you ready for The Search?

Beginning Sunday, January 29 and Thursday, February 2.

This seven-week course will be offered on Sunday afternoons at 1:00 PM and Thursday evenings at 7:00 PM. Registration is available online or in the parish office and costs $20. Registration fee includes a workbook for each participant.

► Priorities

It's the New Year and a good time to think about our Priorities...

How are you spending your days?

Other than work, how much "screen time" is taking up your time?

How much time are you devoting to your family?

How much time are you spending watching TV?

How much time are you spending on exercise?

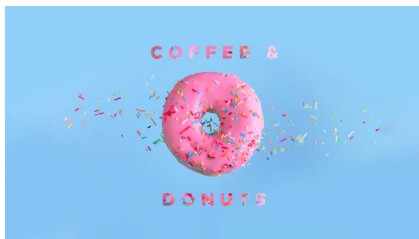

How much time are you devoting to prayer?

"If you don't have enough time for prayer, you are busier than God intended you to be." Quote from the book, Decision Point.

Is it time to take a look at your Priorities?

Discipleship Formation

▶ Walking the Path

Today, as I continue our discussion of the meaning of each of the four separate ways we experience Christ's presence in the Mass, we'll discuss Christ's presence in the person of the priest. Hearing this assertion for the first time might be a little jarring. After all, it seems a bit presumptuous and prideful for a mere human to say that he "is Christ," but I assure you, that the understanding of "in persona Christi" is a bit more nuanced than that. The Catechism of the Catholic Church states, "The redemptive sacrifice of Christ is unique, accomplished once for all; yet it is made present in the Eucharistic sacrifice of the Church. The same is true of the one priesthood of Christ; it is made present through the ministerial priesthood without diminishing the uniqueness of Christ's priesthood: 'Only Christ is the true priest, the others being only his ministers' (1545). The flawed, human nature of a priest is said to not be a factor in the reception of sacraments, because it is Christ who actually confers them! As Pope Saint John Paul II teaches, in persona Christi "means more than offering 'in the name of' or 'in the place of'

Christ. In persona means in specific sacramental identification with the eternal High Priest Who is the author and principal subject of this sacrifice of His, a sacrifice in which, in truth, nobody can take His place" (Dominicae Cenae, 8). It is because of this "sacramental identification" that the priest says, "This is My body... This is My blood." In that moment, it is Christ himself who is speaking and offering himself to the Father. Is the mystery deep? Sure. Are the words that we use to describe it up to the task? Not really.

The priest isn't just bringing about a memorial of Christ's sacrifice. When Jesus commanded, "Do this in memory of me," he was asking for his disciples, specifically the apostles, to do exactly as he did. He didn't say, "Remember that I did this." That difference in wording points out the same directness of action and expectation that can be found when Jesus is speaking in Matthew's Gospel. Jesus said, "Amen, I say to you, whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven, and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. Again, [amen,] I say to you, if two of you agree on earth about anything for which they are to pray, it shall be granted to them by my heavenly Father.

For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them" (Matt 18:18-20).

Again, just like last week, so much more could be said! If there is any aspect of the liturgy that you'd like to know more about, just let me know. Let me, also, take this opportunity to encourage you to join me in participating in the "Catechism in a Year" discussion that will gather on the second and fourth Wednesday evening (6:30-8:00 PM), or Thursday morning (9:30-11:00 AM) each month. There is still time to join the study. Contact me with any questions that you might have.

► Group Mission Trip

Limited spots are still available for your teen. A non-refundable $50/person deposit is needed immediately. Please make checks out to St. Therese of Lisieux with note "2023 Teen Mission Trip" and bring to the office. For questions call Paul Candela at (810) 523-6818 or email candelas@wowway.com.

Building the Domestic Church Kiosk

Today, the Church describes the family as a "domestic church," saying, "The family is, so to speak, the domestic church. In it parents should, by their word and example, be the first preachers of the faith to their children; they should encourage them in the vocation which is proper to each of them" (Lumen Gentium, 11). Precisely, a domestic church is a Christian family that, strengthened by the graces of the sacrament of matrimony, lives together in a community of prayer; learns about the faith, human virtue and Christian charity; and helps evangelize the world.

If you have been to Mass recently and have lingered in the gathering space for a few moments (indeed, we hope you've stopped in for coffee and donuts or breakfast after Mass) you may have noticed the kiosk sponsored by the Knights of Columbus with a collection of short books/pamphlets entitled "Building the Domestic Church Kiosk." If you haven't, take some time to visit. Each booklet is, in its own way, designed to assist in building and strengthening the domestic church. Take one, take several— they're free. More importantly, take the time to read, reflect, and pray with them.

► Advance Care Planning

Health Ministry | 👤 Marilyn Cito, Parish Nurse 📧 marilync@stol.church

Advance care planning involves learning about the types of decisions that might need to be made, thinking about those decisions ahead of time, and then informing your family and healthcare providers. These preferences should be put into an Advance Directive, a legal document that goes into effect only if you are incapacitated and unable to speak for yourself. Having an Advance Directive will direct others as to the type of medical care you want, as well as your desires for “end-of-life” care. You can change this document at any time as your situation or health condition changes.

An Advance Directive also specifies a “Health Care Advocate,” which is the person you choose to make your medical decisions, if you are unable to make them yourself. A Health Care Advocate should be an adult family member or a friend (at least 18 years of age) who knows you well and can be trusted to do what is best for you. It should be someone who is available when you need them and can clearly communicate with your healthcare providers about the decisions.

Sometimes decisions must be made about the use of emergency treatments to keep you alive when you are unable to tell the healthcare providers what you want. You should be familiar with what these emergency treatments are and include your preferences in your Advance Directive. You may designate what you want, what you don’t want, leave the decision up to your Health Care Advocate, or even state you are not sure. Some of these treatment options listed in the Advance Directive include the following:

- CPR (cardiopulmonary resuscitation). CPR is an attempt to restart your heart if you stop breathing or your heart stops beating. This involves doing chest compressions, defibrillation and medicines.
- Using a ventilator as emergency treatment. Ventilators are machines that help you breathe. A tube connected to the ventilator is placed down your throat into the windpipe to deliver air.
- Using artificial nutrition and hydration near the end of life. If you are unable to eat, IV’s will be administered and you may be fed through a feeding tube that goes down to your stomach.
- Comfort care at the end of life. Comfort care are measures that help relieve suffering while following your wishes. Comfort care includes managing shortness of breath, limiting medical testing, providing spiritual and emotional counseling, and giving medications for pain, anxiety, and nausea.

Most importantly, advance care planning is having a conversation with your doctor and your loved ones. Talking to your family or close friends about your wishes will help them understand, support, and follow your preferences for your care. Making your wishes known to your family or close friends before a crisis will help relieve the heavy burden on others having to make difficult and emotional choices on your behalf. Sometimes families pursue aggressive treatments for the patient when there is no hope to avoid making a tough decision. With an Advance Directive, they are able to carry out your choices so they are not left with guilt over decisions they are forced to make.

Musings + Messages (cont’d)

caught up in following the latest fad or trend which then leads us away from God. That is what was happening in first century Corinth. Paul warns his fellow Christians to keep their focus on Christ. That warning still holds true today.

This week, allow the light of Christ to help you to focus your mind and heart in order to be united with God. Ask the Lord to assist you in fostering unity and peace in your families and workplaces. Above all, let the invitation of Jesus to “come after me” echo in your lives so that all that you do may bring about the presence of Christ and challenge others to follow him. There are many events planned for the winter season. Please take a look at our parish website and bulletin for more information. Have a great week.
